Commentary - Prudence - July 2024⁽¹¹⁾

Macro conditions continued to stay mixed in July. While the US inflation has ebbed, the outlook for the US economy remained somewhat murky weak employment figures and unfolding US election drama. The Fed has kept the benchmark rates unchanged but has aligned with global investors over prospects of future rate cuts. Benchmark 10-year US treasury yield compressed over 40bps in July alone and stabilized below 4% in August, the lowest level since Dec 2023. Elsewhere in developed markets, BOE (Bank of England) opted for its first 25bps rate cut in four years, in line with market expectation while RBNZ (Reserve Bank of New Zealand) led a surprise 25bps cut, both in early August. The likelihood of a moderate Fed rate cut has certainly increased.

In Asia, all eyes were on Japan. The BOJ (Bank of Japan) decided to raise the policy rate from 0-0.1% to 0.25% and curbed bond purchases in a surprise move to shore up confidence in the yen and to demonstrate its confidence in the domestic economy. The yen's sudden appreciation due to the BOJ policy shift triggered a global market meltdown on the following Monday, from currencies, and equities to fixed income, reminding investors of the fragility of the current market. China's 20th Party Congress and Central Economic Work Conference focused on fiscal and tax reform. In India, the post-election budget surprised the market on the upside of its fiscal consolidation targets, easing earlier fears of higher diversion to welfare spending. Elsewhere in Asia, central banks are tracking the Fed's action closely.

Asia credit performed well in July, leading to the meltdown in early August. High beta, long duration had outperformed. The portfolio recorded a positive return this month and the event-driven strategy worked well, while hedging positions recorded some marked-to-market losses during the volatile market conditions.
